Inspector of Customs at Panama

PANAMA, April 23rd.—Major Robert H. Carter, Inspector of Customs at this port died of fever on the seventh, he was about 65 years of age and a member of one of the oldest families of Virginia. He served in the Confederate Army on Lee's staff.

Eminently Appropriate.

A young lady sends the following, which is certainly in a high degree appropriate: "A young, thirty-six-year-old young man, more or less, all shapes and sizes, from the tall and graceful, with hair sufficient on his upper lip to stuff a cushion, down to the little bow-legged, freckled-faced corrot headed upstart. The object is to form a gaping portmanteau, to be in attendance at the church doors, at the close of divine service next Sunday evening, to stare at the ladies as they leave church, and to make delicate and gentlemanly remarks about their dress, etc. All who wish to join the above corps are requested to appear at the church doors at the above day mentioned, when they will be duly inspected, their names, personal appearance, quality of brains, etc., will be registered in a book for that purpose. To prevent a general rush it will be well to state that no one will be enlisted who possess the intellectual capacity of a well-bred monkey."

Even nature, in this age, bows before the power of gold. Dublin society speaks with rapture of the wonderful floral decorations at two balls lately given at the Lanes. Other ornaments of roses and moss banks of full-blown, fragrant summer flowers. And all this in March, before the palest of primroses had shown themselves.

WASHINGTON, D. C., April 23.—At the expiration of the morning of the Senate, the reading of the bill on the consideration of the Army bill. The reading of the bill was interrupted by a message from the President informing the Senate and House that the heirs of the late Joseph Coolidge, of Boston, desired to present to the United States the desk on which Thomas Jefferson wrote the Declaration of Independence. The resolution was adopted by the House accepting the gift and thanking the donors was passed without division. The consideration of the Army bill was then resumed.

Senator Blair then moved to strike out the section relating to the use of the Army bill. The poll was rejected. Years 29, nay 28. Senator Blair then offered an amendment prohibiting the carrying of weapons at the polls by any one under a penalty of a fine and imprisonment.

It was clarified that this amendment was not in order as it introduced a new and induced new legislation.

Republicans then offered several amendments intended to break the force of the army at the polls, section it by giving it such a construction as not to prevent the use of the army on election day in manner and for purposes prescribed by the existing laws, all these amendments were rejected by the same vote. Years 29, nay 19.

A Merited Compliment.

Angus Cronin. One of the most notable men in this country is the most estimable man of the House of Representatives. He is colored, but respected by all members for his expertise, courtesy and intelligence. Members of Congress speak in terms of highest praise of the aid they receive from him when they want a search made in the records for evidence to any vexed question. They say that when they have no time, as is only too often the case, they have only to ask Mr. Smith to do so for them and he will carefully look for all references to the question at issue and bring the books to those who have asked him with the answers at each page, where there is anything in the text bearing upon the matter. All of this is the exact truth. Harry Smith, the white Journal Clerk, is not more of a phenomenon than his colored namesake of the laundry.

Horatio Seymour's Career.

New York Sun. It is necessary that a man should be a candidate in order to be nominated for the Presidency? Has the office sunk so low that no man is to be considered available for it unless he has put a machine in operation to capture it? Horatio Seymour was never a candidate for anything. Every office he has held came to him unopposed. The only office that he ever desired was speaker of the house. He was talked of for speaker of the house. Sirs Wright was governor. Mr. Seymour went to him and said: "My name has been mentioned for speaker. If it will embarrass your administration in the slightest degree to have me occupy the speakership, or any other office, you prefer that another candidate should be chosen, just say the word and I will retire from the field." But Wright did not say the word and Seymour was elected. In 1850, when the two hostile wings of the Democracy came together in the State, Seymour was nominated for speaker. But he was not a candidate then. In 1852 he was renominated and elected, but without an effort on his own part, and hardly with his own consent. In 1854 he was very anxious to retire, but was driven into the speakership. The only office that he ever desired an office (even if he did then), was in 1852. He saw and appreciated the necessity of leading the party in the right direction on the war issue. He was a Union man, and he was resolved that the Democracy of New York should be a Union party, whatever it cost. He was a strong and able man. But in 1854 he unqualifiedly refused a renomination. It was only when McClellan's friends peremptorily demanded that he should sacrifice all personal considerations to the good of the cause, that he could stand. No man who followed his course of events in 1856 needs to be told that Governor Seymour was not then a candidate for the Presidency. The nomination was forced upon him in a way that admitted of no honorable withdrawal, and he consented to run. He will not now engage in a struggle for the speakership, and he will not be a candidate again. If others want the place, that can have it for all of him. He meets all overtures with the frank and truthful statement that he is not a candidate. But if the convention nominates him, he will not decline. This is his position, as defined by Senator Kernan and others whose relation with him are not known, and who have never yet mistaken in regard to his true position. He is indisputably the strongest man in the party. For thirty years he was the friend and associate of Tilden. There has never been a difference between him and his party of political unity. He supported Tilden in his fight against Tweed and in his war against the corrupt ring. With the exception of a little knot of personal friends, Tilden's friends are his friends. Moreover he can unite his support the entire Democratic party. His name is well known, but that unless Mr. Tilden is beat on something to his grievances, it will come about in the natural order of events.

Commissioner of Deeds, &c.

Having been appointed Commissioner for the State of New York, Pennsylvania, Missouri, Massachusetts, Virginia, South Carolina, Georgia, Florida, Alabama, Mississippi, Tennessee, Texas, Arkansas, and Louisiana. The only office that he ever desired an office (even if he did then), was in 1852. He saw and appreciated the necessity of leading the party in the right direction on the war issue. He was a Union man, and he was resolved that the Democracy of New York should be a Union party, whatever it cost. He was a strong and able man. But in 1854 he unqualifiedly refused a renomination. Military Use of Skaters.

A peculiar feature of the Norwegian army is the corps of skaters, which has been recently reorganized. It consists of five companies of 110 men each which are trained to use the snowshoes and to ride the hand-sleigh. These men are armed with rifles, and can be maneuvered upon the ice, or the snow slopes of the mountains with a rapidity equal to that of cavalry. Their skates are six inches broad, and between nine and twelve long, and are adapted for trudging over rough ice or frozen snow. The men "tack up" a mountain side by a zig-zag course, like a ship against a head wind. To illustrate the speed which they attain it is said that last winter a messenger dispatched from Roros at 10 o'clock in the morning arrived at Drontheim at 9:30 in the evening, having accomplished 120 miles in 18 hours.

DIVORCE AND DEATH.

DOMESTIC INFELICITY THE CAUSE OF THE TROUBLE.

Jacob Webber's Death Five Minutes After the Jury Find a Verdict in His Favor in His Divorce Suit.

In the year 1877 Jacob Webber married Rose Turner. Webber was a German who settled in Tarboro immediately after the war and had succeeded in acquiring an estate valued at $10,000 in the baker's and confectionery business. He was considerably advanced in years and his appearance indicated that his health was failing down the decline of life. Rose Turner was a prepossessing dame, a little turned of sweet fifteen at date of her marriage.

DOMESTIC INFELICITIES

marred the honeymoon, if, indeed, their moon was possessed of the toothsome flavor. The young bride had got a certain ascertain, but very material, portion of her marital, vota within four days of the ceremony. They quarreled, fought and parted. Again she was taken to bed and bosom.

The old man, it seems, could not comfort the caged bird and she sought solace in the society of certain gay young men who caused jealous husband much chagrin and inconsistency of the telegram. This was done, but nothing further has been heard from that point. It is possible the same tramps who were suspected in Hagerstown and subsequently overhauled in Frederick, having reached Shippensburg, have aroused the suspicion of parties in that place.

The Hip-Pocket.

N. Y. Times.

Mr. Withers is a western man, and is wholly unacquainted with whiskey, but reading of the effects of incompatibility of hip-pocket and glass bottle was very painful and embarrassing. He had returned to his Orange county home from a brief visit to New York, and had brought with him as a present for Miss Wilson—to whom he was attached—such a remarkable ornament which is beyond compare as the Marshals sent to the market. The Marshal sent to the market.

DIVORCE DOCKET.

We next hear of them figuring respectively as plaintiff and defendant on the Edgecomb Superior Court Divorce Docket. His charged minor infirmities admitted at the bar are continuous times and with divers masculines. She, answering, alleged drunkenness, brutality and cruel treatment on the part of her liege lord. His attorneys always urged a trial; hers were equally strenuous in staying it off. Judge John allowed her a sum in the sum of $50 per month, which was reduced afterwards to $10 and finally cut off altogether.

THE TRIAL.

On Tuesday morning the case of Jacob Webber vs. Rosa Webber was called and Judge John allowed the plaintiff to read the judgment of the plaintiff, and Misses Phillips and Bunn said the defendant was prepared for trial. Several witnesses were introduced by plaintiff proving conclusively the allegations in the complaint. The court addressed the jury in the following language: "The Judge charged the pointedly fairly and impartially. The jury found all the issues in favor of the plaintiff and returned their verdict in court.

DEATH OF THE VICTOR.

Scarcely had five minutes elapsed after the rendition of the verdict before it was announced that Jacob Webber was dead. The case had attracted a large crowd to the court house, but neither plaintiff nor defendant was present during the trial. Through the large crowd the news spread, and the only observation elicited was: "Death in the moment of victory." The solving of the bonds of the law of God and man was almost simultaneous.

Mr. Webber, it is said, had, for a long time, been a drunkard, and was also suffering from rheumatism with hernia. It is said that he received a kick from R. A. Sizer on Monday night, while he was in a drunken condition, during an alteration, but the general opinion is that he was the victim of alcohol.

A Remarkable Suicide.

A Boston dispatch to the New York Herald gives the following particulars of a most remarkable and terrible suicide, heretofore unrecorded, as having occurred at Chelsea, Mass.: "Two days ago a farmer named Pillsbury had occasion to go to Newburyport, and had left his son, Stephen M., 30 years of age, in charge of the farm. When Mr. Pillsbury returned about two weeks ago, he found his son lying in vain for his son, Mr. Pillsbury approached the barn, unlocked the door, and in a moment thereafter a horrible sight met his gaze. On the floor was the body of his son, with the head almost completely severed from the body. The instrument of death was a perfectly straight scythe, in which the ingenious suicide had probably spent a month in manufacturing. The machine consisted of posts two feet apart, and reaching from the floor to the roof of the barn. About six feet of wood had been adjusted in a piece of wood, six inches square, six feet, so as to fit in such a situation by any father." But Mr. Withers did not get up to attend to the light, but requested the young lady to discharge this duty for him. She did so, and then noticed his pained and preoccupied expression. To her anxious inquiries he admitted that he felt faint and would like a glass of water. Miss Wilson hurriedly went for the water, reproaching herself for being so heavy and causing herself of selfishness and want of consideration. In her absence the young man made superhuman efforts to remain in the house, and when Miss Wilson returned with the glass of water, he looked so much worse that she was really frightened, and he was compelled to tell her the real state of the case.

She was a practical person, and she promptly prepared a scalding bath, and dissolved a saleratus in the water, and when he complained of the heat she said: "I am not to be blamed for this, but I am not to be blamed for this either."

Dr. Worth Not a Candidate for Governor.

Raleigh, April 23rd, 1880.

Correspondence of the News.

At different times correspondents and editors in various parts of the State have suggested the name of John W. Worth, as a suitable candidate for the office of Governor of North Carolina. His numerous friends believe that a man of his inflexible integrity, and sound record would be a good candidate. However, it is said that his position of the chair was purely involuntary, his misfortune might never have become generally known. When disasters such as this liable to happen to the wearers of hip-pockets, they are not altogether too hazardous for general use. In fact, good authorities maintain that the hip pocket is positively detrimental, and that an earnest and united effort should be made to procure its extirpation.

PAROLE has been beaten again. Better bring him home.

Mahometan and Granism are synonymous terms.

It is thought now that the Geneva award bill will "sleep that sleep that knows no waking."

THE SYRACUSE anti-Tammany Convention stood 25 to 80 against Mr. Tilden.

THE ARRIVAL of the U. S. reliefship "Constellation" on the Irish coast is hailed with delight by the famishing Irish.

THE FIGHT for the nomination for Congress in the First District lies between Major Latham and Judge Eure, both estimable gentlemen.

THE QUESTION is beginning to trouble the country of what shall we do with Hayes when he goes out of office? Send him abroad we suppose.

BLAINE is leading Grant in the West. Business is growing brisk on the political chess-board. The clouds are gathering for a big storm at Chicago.

POSTMASTER General Key, the political general, is casting wistful eyes on the Vice-Presidency on the Grant ticket. He is not the man to break the solid South.

MUCH REGRET is felt North as well as South over Gen. J. E. Johnson's determination to retire from Congress as soon as his term expires.

THE steam mills around Newbern are busily employed sawing timber for an elevated railroad in Philadelphia.

THE Charlotte Observer says that the woman Francis Hood will be hung July 2nd. Horne and Gallaway will hang May 7th.

YOUNG MEN'S Christian Association have changed time for holding convention to June 3rd. It may be changed from Goldsboro also.

CAMERON, Conkling and Logan assert most positively that Grant will be nominated by acclamation at Chicago and elected. Not so fast gentlemen, we'll be in at the killing.

THE Republican Readjuster Convention which met in Staunton on 22nd, was captured by the Republicans and a resolution endorsing and instructing delegates to Chicago to vote for Grant was adopted.

THE Cape Fear Banner endorses Rev. N. B. Cobb, for the office of Superintendent of Public Instruction. Mr. Cobb is an able and good man. Send in your names gentlemen. All the returns are not in yet.

SITTING BULL is about to starve out in Canada. Gen. Miles will allow these Indians to return as prisoners of war, all others will be treated as outlaws. Mercy for the obedient and severity for the defiant is Gen. Miles' Indian policy.

SUPERIOR COURT begins in Bertie county on Monday, Judge Gudger presiding. The Judge held the court for Edgecombe this week, where he won the warmest encomiums from the citizens of that county.

WE have just received the first number of the Fayetteville Examiner, published and edited by R. K. Bryan, Senator from Pender County in last Legislature. The paper is well gotten up, both typographical and otherwise. Business to the enterprise.

THE Republicans in Congress have had the candor to admit that they have put three hundred and eighty-seven riders on appropriation bills, during the twelve years they had control of things. When we saddle an appropriation bill with a "rider," what a howl goes up. The case of the gored ox suggests it to self to us.

WE HAVE before us a pamphlet giving an account of a type setting machine. The pamphlet itself is printed by this new process. This machine is destined to work a revolution in literature. One man it is said can with this machine do the work of five by the old process.

When the use of the type setter becomes general, "Printer's Unions" will "go where the wood vine twine."

THE excursioning public are rejoicing that the season will soon begin. What changes a few weeks bring about. Excursions are now now run from the mountains to the sea-shore, and vice versa. What was formerly considered a long laborious journey occupying days and weeks of travel to go from the western to the eastern part of the State, is now a pleasureable trip of only a few hours.

COV. JARVIS has drawn the first blood in the First District. The Bertie county Democratic Convention which met in Windsor last week, after much debate and excitement between the respective friends of Gov. Jarvis and Judge Fowle instructed the delegates to the State Convention from that county to cast their votes for Gov. Jarvis.

There was a good deal of feeling exhibited by the friends of both these gentlemen. The vote of instruction was carried by a majority of only two. This is the first political gun fired by the good old First. Delegates were appointed to the Congressional Convention, but not instructed. Latham is believed to be Bertie's choice for Congress.

THE most sanguine must admit that the Democratic party of New York State now straddles a very dangerous fence. It will certainly take consummate skill to unite the two factions. New York will be lost to the Democrats if things continue to stand as now. To carry the election in that State, it is absolutely necessary for us to march under one flag when the time to vote comes. The party in New York stands to day between the horns of a dilemma, which threatens it with impalement whenever way it turns. The only way we see out of this difficulty is to pitch Tilden and Kelly both overboard and baggage. The party would gladly see these two party dividers retire for life.

HONOR TO WHOM HONOR IS DUE. We clip the following which appeared under the above head in the Jackson Reporter of late date. Col. Clark is a rising man of decided ability, and it gives us pleasure to know that the young hero of the "Mud Cut Boom" is appreciated.

"It is generally the case that we agree with our excellent contemporary, the Granville Free Lance, upon all public questions, and upon no subject have we agreed with it more heartily than upon the above. In a recent issue of the Granville Free Lance, Col. Walter Clark of Raleigh, a deserved compliment, and we were glad to see from such a source, for it is a fact that must be sooner or later generally recognized and admitted that but for Col. Clark's much声誉 and influence, the Western North Carolina railroad burden would still be upon the tax payers of North Carolina. The writer was one among those to whom the Colonel submitted his circular when it was first issued, and we may say that while the time its issue was a matter of great interest, many of his statements were as present that we were forced either to endorse them or to repudiate ourselves, and we therefore adopt the former alternative. We somewhat feared that its contents would result in a temporary injury, but we were greatly mistaken in regard to the good of the party and the salvation of the State, and we all see now that even our fears of immediate injury were not well founded, and that so far as the future is concerned we may say that the influence of this article, though it was elicited from our politics this greatest element of our politics had thoroughly aroused the public mind, those who were in a position to take some action in the premises were cast to solve the grave question of what would be done to reconcile matters and afford relief to the people who had all over the State raised their voices for relief, and, fortunately for North Carolina, Best & Co., appeared on the scene, and we know the result. Not only have our friends in the State been greatly relieved by the completion of the Western North Carolina railroad soon assured, but our party has shaken off a fetter that must have hampered it. For all this we must heartily say, "Honors to the brave." Col. Walter Clark all North Carolinians are full of gratitude; and we cannot believe that the Democrat party of the State can be so unmindful of its duty as to forget its greatest benefactor.
